

NAPCS Unionization Research — State Research Summary

Rhode Island — NLRB Region 1 (Boston) Jurisdiction — May 2026

NAPCS Unionization Research • May 2026 • Template v7.0 • COMPLETE Registry Sweep

Section 1: State Overview

State	Rhode Island
Labor Board	NLRB Region 1 (Boston) — National Labor Relations Board, Region 1, Boston
Governing Law	Federal NLRA. All 42 RI charter schools are independently incorporated nonprofits — including the 3 LEA/District-authorized schools (Apprenticeship Exploration/Cranston; Times2 x2/Providence). RI charters are treated as private employers under the NLRA. The Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board (RISLRB, R.I.G.L. Ch. 28-7) has no jurisdiction over charter school employees. RI has no Right-to-Work law.
Federal NLRB Jurisdiction	YES — NLRB Region 1 (Boston) has exclusive jurisdiction over all 42 RI charter schools. No split jurisdiction.
Registry Sweep	COMPLETE — May 23, 2026 — 42 charter schools searched
Research Window	May 23, 2026 (full registry sweep — NLRB R1 ADS + education press)
Date Convention	Labor Board Certified date (project-wide convention, declared NJ session). NLRB Certification of Representative date used for all 4 RI confirmed schools. All certs September 2024 – June 2025.
Card-Check Available	NO — Secret ballot election required. No card-check available under NLRA. RI has no state public employment law applicable to these schools.

Section 2: Unionization Density

Total charter schools in Rhode Island: 42 (Charter School Registry v56 (May 2026 — all 42 open RI charter schools)). Unionization density uses the full state total as the denominator — not the 42-school NAPCS research sample. The NAPCS sample was provided as a list of schools believed to be organized; this research validated, corrected, and expanded that list across the full state charter universe. See Section 3 for cross-state patterns and Section 7 for open decisions.

Category	Schools	% of Total	Notes
Confirmed Union Schools — NLRB Elections (4 schools, 2024-2025)	4	9.5%	Highlander Elementary (IBEW, Sep 2024), Paul Cuffee Upper (RIFT&HP/AFT, Oct 2024), Paul Cuffee Lower (RIFT&HP/AFT, Dec 2024), Paul Cuffee Middle (RIFT&HP/AFT, Jun 2025). All via NLRB R1 secret ballot elections. All in first-contract negotiations.
Confirmed DEPENDENT — District CBA Carryover (2 schools)	2	4.8%	NEL/CPS Construction Career Academy (Cranston Teachers Alliance/AFT — Cranston LEA-authorized) and Times2 Academy (Providence Teachers Union/AFT — Providence LEA-authorized). Staff are district employees covered by district CBAs by operation of RI law. Same DEPENDENT pattern as OH, OR, MA dependent charters. CBA text confirmed available for NEL/CPS (CTA 2019-2022 contract). Source: NAPCS February 2026 dataset.

Confirmed CLOSED — Historical Record (1 school)	1	N/A	Academy for Career Exploration (ACE), Providence — Providence Teachers Union/AFT. Closed June 2020. Outside 3-year lookback from May 2026. NAPCS Feb 2026 data still shows ACE as open — data is stale. Documented as historical record only.
Unverified — No Confirming Evidence Found	34	81.0%	Includes all 6 Blackstone Valley Prep, all 7 Achievement First, all 2 RISE Prep, and 19 standalone independents. No NLRB R1 RC cases found. No press evidence of organizing.
Total Open RI Charter Schools	42	100%	Source: Charter School Registry v56 (May 2026). All 42 open; 0 closed within 3-year lookback window.

Section 3: Political, Legal & Community Landscape

Written for state and national charter sector leaders who require ground-level intelligence fused with broader sector knowledge. Findings are based on research as of May 2026.

PROMPT 1: Rhode Island is not in the original NAPCS 584-school dataset. Why was it added and what should sector leaders know at the outset?

Rhode Island was added to This research scope at the direct request of executive sponsor Executive Sponsor. With 42 open charter schools and zero NAPCS baseline overlap, all findings here are net-new intelligence. RI is a small but rapidly organizing state — four schools certified within a 10-month window (August 2024 through June 2025), all in Providence. The pace of organizing activity rivals states with far larger charter sectors, and press coverage suggests additional schools may be considering organizing in 2026.

PROMPT 2: What is the jurisdictional framework for Rhode Island charter schools, and does the state labor board play any role?

All 42 RI charter schools fall under NLRB Region 1 (Boston) jurisdiction. Rhode Island law designates charter schools as public schools for student accountability and curriculum purposes, but all RI charters are independently incorporated nonprofits — making them private employers under the NLRA. The Rhode Island State Labor Relations Board (RISLRB) has no jurisdiction over charter school employees. When RIDE Commissioner Angélica Infante-Green argued in November 2025 that a charter teacher strike was illegal under RI's public school strike ban, IBEW Local 2323 rejected that position in federal court filings, asserting federal law (NLRA) takes precedence. That jurisdictional question remains unresolved as of the research date.

PROMPT 3: How did the Paul Cuffee School become Rhode Island's first fully unionized charter, and what does the organizing timeline look like?

Paul Cuffee School organized sequentially across three campuses in 9 months: Upper School certified October 29, 2024 (22-8 vote, RIFT&HP/AFT, 01-RC-351451); Lower School certified December 10, 2024 (31-2 landslide, RIFT&HP/AFT, 01-RC-354563); Middle School certified June 11, 2025 (12-1 professional unit, RIFT&HP/AFT, 01-RC-365528). The Middle School certification completed full unionization, confirmed by Providence Business News June 4, 2025. The Providence City Council passed a resolution in March 2025 supporting the Lower and Upper School unionizations. All three campuses are in first-contract negotiations as of the research date.

PROMPT 4: What is the Highlander Elementary situation, and why is an electrical workers' union representing charter school teachers?

Highlander Elementary Charter School (Providence) is the first RI charter to unionize, certifying with IBEW Local 2323 on September 6, 2024 (28-4 vote, 01-RC-346458). IBEW Local 2323 is a Cranston-based telecommunications local — its entry reflects a broader national trend of non-traditional unions organizing charter school workers. IBEW's Regional Organizing Coordinator Steve Smith worked directly with staff; the union was chosen for organizing capacity and worker-voice reputation, not education-sector expertise. The IBEW newsletter featured Highlander as a model organizing case nationally. Highlander's secondary campus (Warren) is NOT unionized. In November 2025, IBEW called a 2-day strike over wages and healthcare costs, challenging RI's teacher strike prohibition in federal court. First contract not yet ratified as of May 2026.

PROMPT 5: What does the 2019 Highlander failed election tell us about organizing persistence in Rhode Island?

Highlander's 2024 certification was its second attempt. The first election (October 2019, 01-RC-250256) failed 11-12 — a single-vote margin. The second attempt succeeded 28-4 — a landslide. This 5-year arc is the clearest national exemplar of organizing persistence in the research dataset. Key variables that shifted: national momentum post-2023, IBEW's experienced organizing coordinator, lead organizer Michaela Wnuk (a math specialist at the school since 2007), and worsening wages and healthcare costs. For sector leaders: a failed election does not extinguish organizing interest — it often radicalizes the workforce.

PROMPT 6: What is the political and legislative landscape for charter school labor relations in Rhode Island?

Rhode Island has no equivalent of Louisiana's Act 172 (which stripped NLRB jurisdiction) or Florida's SB 256 (which requires annual union recertification). RI's charter sector operates under standard federal NLRA rules with no state-level anti-union overlay. The unresolved question — whether RI's public school teacher strike ban applies to charter employees organized under the NLRA — is the most significant active legal issue. Resolution will affect first-contract negotiations at all organized schools. The Boston Globe (January 2025) noted that RIFT&HP/AFT and NEA-RI were in active conversations with other charter school teachers, and that first-contract outcomes at Highlander and Cuffee would serve as bellwethers for whether additional schools organize.

PROMPT 7: Which networks and school types are most and least organized, and what does that suggest for future organizing?

Organized: All 4 confirmed certifications are at independent charter schools. The Paul Cuffee network (3/3 campuses organized) and Highlander (1/2 campuses) account for the full picture. Unorganized: All 6 Blackstone Valley Prep schools (Charter School Growth Fund portfolio, mayoral academy), all 7 Achievement First schools (national CMO, mayoral academy), all 2 RISE Prep schools (mayoral academy) show no organizing activity. The Boston Globe (January 2025) noted that mayoral academies historically face stronger union pushback because they belong to larger national networks with more resources to resist. The independent-vs.-mayoral gap is the defining structural pattern in RI.

PROMPT 8: What is the unique union affiliation story in Rhode Island — specifically the IBEW at Highlander?

IBEW Local 2323 is a telecommunications local in Cranston, RI. Its success at Highlander Elementary reflects a national trend of non-traditional unions organizing charter school workers by emphasizing general labor rights over education-sector expertise. RIFT&HP/AFT organized all three Paul Cuffee campuses via the traditional education-union path. The two unions coexist without apparent jurisdictional conflict. IBEW's Highlander certification is featured in the union's national newsletter as a model for organizing non-traditional workplaces — the school was named for the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee, which has deep roots in the labor movement, which the IBEW explicitly invoked in its organizing narrative.

PROMPT 9: How do Research Team's RI findings compare with the NAPCS baseline data and the February 2026 NAPCS dataset?

RI is not in the NAPCS 584-school baseline (This research scope). The NAPCS February 2026 dataset contains 36 RI school rows and identifies 3 schools as union: (1) Academy for Career Exploration/ACE — Providence

Teachers Union/AFT, "collective bargaining agreement required by state law"; (2) NEL/CPS Construction Career Academy (Cranston) — Cranston Teachers Alliance/AFT, same description; (3) Times2 Academy (Providence) — Providence Teachers Union/AFT, same description. CRITICAL: ACE closed June 2020 — NAPCS data is stale for this school. NEL/CPS and Times2 are district-authorized schools whose staff are on district CBAs by law — this is the DEPENDENT pattern (not independently organized). Research Team's 4 CONFIRMED schools (Highlander, Paul Cuffee x3) have ZERO overlap with the NAPCS 3 — Research Team schools all certified 2024-2025 via NLRB R1 elections, all post-NAPCS data cutoff. The NAPCS data captured the pre-2019 landscape; Research Team captured the 2024-2025 organizing wave that NAPCS has not yet reflected. Combined picture: 4 Research Team CONFIRMED (NLRB elections) + 2 DEPENDENT (district CBA carryover — NEL/CPS and Times2) = 6 organized RI charter schools in total, or 7 if ACE is counted as CONFIRMED CLOSED (lookback applies: closed June 2020, within 3-year window from 2023; outside 3-year window from May 2026). ACE should be documented as CONFIRMED CLOSED — outside Research Team lookback window but noted as historical record.

PROMPT 10: Are there CBA texts available for any of the organized RI charter schools?

Yes — one confirmed CBA URL found in the NAPCS data. NEL/CPS Construction Career Academy (Cranston Teachers Alliance, AFT Local 1704) has a publicly available CBA on the CTA website. The NAPCS source field points to the 2019-2022 CTA-CPS contract: https://www.cta1704.org/uploads/8/6/8/7/8687649/cta-cps_2019-2022_teacher_contract_-_final_-_9-12-19__1_.pdf. This confirms NEL/CPS staff bargain under the Cranston Teachers Alliance district CBA — the charter is LEA-authorized by Cranston and its teachers remain district employees covered by the district-wide CBA. No CBA text found for Times2 Academy (PTU source URL leads to proteun.org/ptu/index.php/schools/schools — schools directory, not a contract document). No CBA text found for any of the 4 Research Team CONFIRMED schools (all in first-contract negotiations as of May 2026 — no ratified CBA exists yet). Coordinator action: (1) Attempt to retrieve NEL/CPS 2019-2022 CBA from the confirmed URL and check if a successor 2022-2025 or 2025-2028 CBA exists; (2) Check Providence Teachers Union website (proteun.org) for Times2 and ACE contract documents; (3) Monitor RIFTHP.org and IBEW.org for first-contract ratification announcements at Highlander and Paul Cuffee.

PROMPT 11: What does the NAPCS "collective bargaining agreement required by state law" description mean for NEL/CPS and Times2 — and how does it change our count?

The NAPCS description "Collective bargaining agreement required by state law" is the DEPENDENT classification — staff at these schools are covered by district CBAs by operation of Rhode Island law, not by an independently organized NLRB election. NEL/CPS Construction Career Academy is a Cranston Public Schools LEA-authorized charter whose teachers are Cranston district employees under the Cranston Teachers Alliance (AFT Local 1704) CBA. Times2 Academy is Providence-LEA-authorized; its staff are Providence district employees under the Providence Teachers Union (AFT Local 958) CBA. This is structurally identical to the DEPENDENT pattern documented in Ohio, Oregon, and other states. Adding these two to the RI count: Research Team 4 CONFIRMED (NLRB) + 2 DEPENDENT (district CBA) = 6 organized RI charter schools. Combined density = $6/42 = 14.3\%$. The DEPENDENT schools should be added to `ri_state_data.js` with status CONFIRMED (DEPENDENT) and notes documenting the district CBA mechanism — they are legitimately organized, just through a different legal pathway than NLRB election.

Section 4: Cross-State Patterns & Contributions to National Picture

Findings from Rhode Island that illuminate patterns visible only when comparing across multiple states. These entries feed the project-wide Cross-State Intelligence Log and are written for state and national charter advocacy leaders.

IBEW charter school organizing — non-traditional union entry into education sector (RI named exemplar: Highlander Elementary Charter)

Highlander Elementary Charter (Providence, RI, IBEW Local 2323, cert September 2024) is only the second known IBEW charter school certification in the research dataset. IBEW Local 2323 is a telecommunications local — its entry reflects a national trend of non-traditional unions (IBEW, IATSE, Teamsters) filling the organizing vacuum in sectors where NEA/AFT have been slow to engage. The Highlander case is featured in IBEW's national newsletter as a replicable model. Sector leaders should be aware that the union landscape in their schools may not be limited to NEA/AFT affiliates.

Sequential multi-campus organizing — Paul Cuffee as national model for network-wide unionization strategy (RI named exemplar)

Paul Cuffee School certified three campuses sequentially in 9 months: Upper (Oct 2024), Lower (Dec 2024), Middle (Jun 2025). This strategy — organizing the most sympathetic unit first, then using certification momentum at adjacent campuses — mirrors patterns in IL (ChiACTS campaigns) and CA (Green Dot wave organizing). The Paul Cuffee arc is the clearest recent national exemplar of deliberate multi-campus sequential organizing at a single charter network.

Federal vs. state law strike rights — RI as first documented test case for charter school NLRA preemption of state strike ban

Rhode Island is the first documented case in the research dataset where a charter school union (IBEW Local 2323 at Highlander Elementary) asserted federal NLRA preemption of a state-law teacher strike prohibition and acted on that assertion (November 2025 strike). RIDE and the school argued RI's public teacher strike ban applied; IBEW filed a federal court complaint asserting NLRA preemption. The legal question has national implications wherever state strike bans exist — which is most states. RI's resolution will be closely watched.

Second-attempt organizing success — Highlander Elementary as named exemplar (RI)

Highlander Elementary's 2024 certification (28-4) followed a 2019 failed election (11-12 — one vote). The 5-year gap, different union, and dramatically improved outcome is the clearest national exemplar of organizing persistence in the research dataset. The parallel in NY is King Center Charter School, where organizing succeeded after earlier dormancy. Key lesson: failed elections do not extinguish organizing interest — they often radicalize the workforce. Charter operators who "win" an election should treat it as a temporary outcome.

Section 5: Media Coverage & Public Stakeholder Positions

Press Coverage

Rhode Island's 2024-2025 charter organizing wave generated significant regional and national press coverage. Eight primary sources documented confirmed events. The dominant outlets were Rhode Island Current (rhodeislandcurrent.com), Providence Business News (pbn.com), the Boston Globe, and GoLocalProv, plus national coverage in the IBEW Electrical Worker newsletter. Coverage peaked in November 2025 (Highlander strike) and June 2025 (Paul Cuffee full unionization). Notable items: (1) "Rhode Island law bans teacher strikes. Teachers at one charter school are challenging that." — Boston Globe, November 24, 2025. Highlander IBEW strike — federal preemption argument. RIFT&HP/AFT president says Paul Cuffee teachers also have right to strike. Union Communications

RIFT&HP/AFT (Rhode Island Federation of Teachers and Health Professionals): Three Paul Cuffee campuses. RIFTHP.org acknowledges Paul Cuffee Upper School as the first independent RI charter to unionize with RIFT&HP. The AFT national organization has highlighted the Paul Cuffee sequential organizing campaign as a model for multi-campus charter unionization. RIFTHP president publicly stated Paul Cuffee teachers have the right to strike under NLRA, asserting federal preemption of RI's state strike prohibition. IBEW Local 2323 (Cranston, RI): Highlander Elementary. IBEW's national Electrical Worker newsletter (April 2025) featured the Highlander organizing campaign as a model for non-traditional unions entering charter school organizing. Lead organizer Steve Smith and school-based organizer Michaela Wnuk (math specialist, at Highlander since 2007) are named. IBEW explicitly invoked the school's Highlander Folk School heritage (named for the Tennessee labor movement school) in its organizing narrative. IBEW filed a federal court complaint in November 2025 asserting NLRA preemption of RI's teacher strike ban. NEA-RI: Not directly involved in any current RI charter organizing. Boston Globe (January 2025) notes NEA-RI is in conversations with other charter teachers alongside RIFT&HP, suggesting potential future campaigns. NEA drove the organizing effort at Turquoise Trail (NM) and the NM connection is noted as a model by NEA-RI.

Employer / School Communications

Highlander Charter School: School administration opposed the November 2025 strike, joining RIDE Commissioner Angélica Infante-Green in arguing that RI's public school teacher strike prohibition applies to charter school employees. School sought to enjoin the strike. The underlying federal preemption question (NLRA vs. RI strike ban) remains in federal court as of May 2026. No school communications indicate acceptance of strike action. Paul Cuffee School: No press statements opposing unionization found. Providence Business News (June 4, 2025) quotes were limited to union representatives. School administration is in first-contract negotiations with RIFTHP across all three campuses. Rhode Island Current (May 27, 2025) notes that the 20% per-pupil funding gap between charter and district schools is a complication in first-contract bargaining — a note attributed to school financial constraints, not to anti-union posture.

Authorizer / State Agency Positions

RIDE Commissioner Angélica Infante-Green: Publicly argued in November 2025 that RI's public school teacher strike prohibition applies to charter school employees, aligning with the Highlander school administration's position. The Commissioner's office has not issued any broader policy statement on charter school unionization. Rhode Island Council on Elementary and Secondary Education (CESE/RIDE): No public policy statements on charter school unionization identified. CESE is the authorizer for all four independently organized RI charter schools. Providence City Council: Passed a resolution in March 2025 supporting the Paul Cuffee Lower and Upper School unionizations. First known municipal government endorsement of charter school unionization in RI.

Legislative Context

RI has no equivalent of Florida's SB 256 (annual recertification), Louisiana's Act 172 (NLRB jurisdiction stripping), or any state-level anti-union charter legislation. The most significant active legal question is whether RI's public school teacher strike ban (which applies to DCPS teachers under RIPLRA) extends to charter school employees organized under NLRB. IBEW Local 2323's federal court complaint is the vehicle for resolving this question. Until resolved, the right of NLRB-organized charter school teachers to strike in RI is legally uncertain. The Providence City Council resolution (March 2025) supporting Paul Cuffee unionizations represents the only legislative/governmental position explicitly endorsing charter school organizing in RI.
